Overview

What are monocrystalline solar panels?

Monocrystalline solar panels are a type of solar panel made from a single crystal of silicon. They are known for their high efficiency and sleek, black appearance. The manufacturing process for monocrystalline solar panels involves growing a single crystal of silicon from a seed crystal.

Are polycrystalline solar panels better than monocrystalline panels?

Because they are less efficient than monocrystalline panels, you may find that you will need to add a couple more panels to your array so that you'll be able to produce enough solar power to cover your usage. Currently, Canadian Solar Panels are the only brand of Polycrystalline panels that we stock.

How are monocrystalline solar cells made?

Monocrystalline cells are cut into wafer-thin slices from a cylindrical silicon ingot. Because the solar cells are a square shape, the production of the mono panels produces wastage. These cut off pieces are either disposed of or remelted to make a new solar cell.
